

Severe Weather Story Partner Worksheet (for Activity 3)

Listen to your partner's severe weather story. Remember to think about what you've learned about the qualities of a story, and about storytelling and public speaking skills. After listening to the story, fill out this worksheet and discuss it with your partner.

Was your partner expressive?

Did your partner present the series of events clearly?

Would the story be more effective or easier to follow if parts of the story were told in a different order? If so, why? If not, what works well about the order?

What were your partner's greatest strengths?

What could your partner do to improve the story and the telling?

What parts of the story stood out to you?
